As our new Level Designer (f/m/d) at Ubisoft Düsseldorf, you will be responsible for setting up and maintaining various locations in an open world, using proprietary tools with the goal of creating interesting game-play situations based on the creative vision. Environment and layout aesthetic sensibilities will help a lot in this role.

What you will do:

- Document and create levels according to the artistic, creative and design visions.
- Present ideas to interdependent teams (conceptualize and communicate engaging gameplay experiences).
- Prototype different scenarios and gameplay elements to validate their pertinence and effect.
- Use integration tools to create explorable and rich gaming spaces.
- Layout your environment in detail (place activities, non-player characters, encounters, events, and other features that advance the game narratively).
- Use scripting tools to integrate narrative sequences and quest gameplay.
- Balance artistic aspects with metrics and technical constraints.
- Collaborate with level artists and animators to breathe life and beauty into your created space (composition, structure, architecture) and encourage interactions.
- Cooperate with mission designers to ensure playability and consistency.
- Develop your design based on comments from play testers and cross-functional team members (iterate, debug and optimize).

What you bring:

- 2+ years experience in game level design and production or equivalent (experience with action games is a plus).
- At least one shipped title (AAA games experience is a plus).
- A strong level, environment or mission design portfolio.
- A good sense of 3D game space and environmental storytelling.
- A good understanding of narrative and mission/quest flow.
- Good knowledge of level design fundamentals as it relates to modern action open-world games.
- Experience with game engines (e.g. Unreal Engine, Unity, etc.).
- Experience using visual scripting tools.
- Good communication and documentation skills.
- Experience in playing and analyzing open-world action-adventure games.

- Good critical and analytical skills; understand and adapt to received feedback.
